

St. Catherine Hospital

June 14, 2006

To Whom It May Concern:

I recruit for a small, rural hospital in southwest Kansas and with that come many challenges. That is why St. Catherine Hospital continues to depend on Arthur, Marshall Inc. to fill our openings.

The targeted mail campaign they send out detailing our opportunity is instrumental in identifying the best candidates. It helps Arthur, Marshall in presenting us with screened, qualified candidates who know and understand our opportunity and facility before they ever interview with us. In addition, their face-to-face client consultation really makes a difference. I receive from them an in-depth client profile that leaves no guessing when the site-visit actually takes place.

The recruiter that I work with is always available to answer any questions and keeps in touch with me on a regular basis. He can present our opportunity from a personal level because he has spent many hours visiting our community, hospital, staff, and physicians. He takes a real personal interest in finding us the best candidates when we have a top priority search.

Sincerely,
